Governor Sheldon, of New Mexico, says the Indian troubles have been greatly exaggerated, and have been made sensational by newspaper correspondents. Very likely.

It will be a great wonder if Sergeant Mason who attempted to shoot Guitau is not convicted of an attempt to kill, while the wretch who tried to murder the President remains a prisoner of State.

Fires seem to be all the rage this fall. On the four grounds in Kansas City, one occurred on Wednesday which destroyed $38,000 worth of property. The forests in New Jersey are also on fire, and over 100,000 acres of cedar lands have been burnt over.

The Hon. J. C. Gregory, of Madison is a good lawyer and a strong Democrat. When some one spoke to him about being the Democratic candidate for Governor, he said: "I am very much obliged to them, but I can't consent to be ravished." "Ravished" is the word. It just suits, and Mr. Gregory understands it.

A highwayman in New Hampshire, has tried his hand at robbery in broad daylight, but he was hardly so successful as some of our western knights of the road. He stopped a team containing a gentleman and his family, and got $300 and a diamond pin. He next attempted to rob a stage coach, but one of the passengers actually had the courage to fire at the robber, which put an end to the dare-devil's scheme.

The most famous eater that ever lived in this country, was Lorenzo Delmonico of New York. His fame spread far wider than the limits of this continent. He began years ago in a very humble way, and by dining and winning statesmen, actors, singers, jurists, foreign ambassadors, Presidents, lords, dukes, and princes, he made a fortune. He has spread tables which cost all the way from $3 to $20 a head, and thereby become a millionaire. His fortune is $2,000,000, and he gives his wife $400,000 and his house and stables.

The regents of the Wisconsin State University decided a short time ago that the students entering that institution shall pay $4 each for fuel and light. The students have become enraged over the tax, and propose to strike, that is, they have proposed to resist the payment of the tax and have employed lawyers, and will take the matter into the courts. Inasmuch as there is no charge for tuition, it would seem that the students should not complain at so small a charge as $4 for fuel and light. The next step the students will make will probably be to demand a premium for entering the University.

Since the election of Dingley, Republican, to Congress from the Second Maine district, there are only four vacancies to be filled, and all these are in New York. The membership of the Forty-seventh Congress now stands: Republicans, 144; Democrats, 173; Greenbackers, 9; Virginia Readjusters 2; and 1 Independent Republican (the Rev. Hyatt Smith, of Brooklyn). The four New York vacancies will be filled in December. The Republicans will probably elect their men in three out of the four places. If they do, the House will stand, Republicans 147, or a clear majority over the combined Democratic, Greenback, and Independent vote.

A substantial contribution to the coming centennial celebration at Yorktown is Mr. H. P. Johnston's volume, "The Yorktown Campaign," which Harper & Bros. will publish in a few days. The book is copiously illustrated with maps and fine engravings from famous historical paintings by Trumbull, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Gilbert Stuart, and others. It is no little compliment of Mr. Johnston's accuracy that he has been consulted in locating the camping grounds of the militia from the various States, which it is designed to make identical with the camping grounds of the troops from their respective States a century ago.

It is almost ever thus with those who commit wilful murder and then enter the plea of insanity. Mrs. Ada Robertson, of Chicago, shot and killed Mr. T. B. Weber two years ago, while he was sitting in his office, in that city. She charged that he had withdrawn support from her son—some ten or twelve years old—of whom she claimed he was the father. When she was tried, a plea of insanity was entered, and she was sent to the Elgin asylum. She is perfectly sane now and asks to be released. A writ of habeas corpus has been granted, and it will be heard this week. In all probability she will be discharged and the murder of Weber soon forgotten. Weber was a middle aged man, of ample fortune, and at the time of the murder his family were traveling in Europe.

Instead of the Chicago & Alton train robbers getting $15,000, it is said the aggregate plunder will not reach more than $3,000. It has been said that in all such cases "the dividends are small and the assessments sure." This is so, in regard to this robbery, and it may be that the seventeen men engaged in it will be captured. An effort will be made to have the one already arrested (the State's evidence and give the other members of the lawless gang away. It has been suggested that the railway company should also offer him a bonus to divulge the names and whereabouts of his associates. Whether this will be done by railways is not known, but it is likely that when he sees he must go to prison, he will tell all he knows about the matter, that he may have his old associates for company.

Judge George W. Cate, ex-member of Congress, from the Eighth district, a Democrat in politics, and who took a seat in Congress on a majority of two votes, and these votes pronounced illegal by the Supreme Court, has given his opinion of the gubernatorial question. Although he thinks from the present status Secretary of State Warner holds the winning hand, yet at the proper time the present Governor will step in and "pluck the parsonage." He further asserted that the "best policy for the Democrats to adopt would be a failure to place a ticket in the field—that by placing one in nomination they only contributed to the perpetration of a party which had outlived its usefulness, without the remotest possibility of carrying the day while a passive acknowledgment of uselessness would result in a new party having something better at its basis and introduction to public favor than the dead issues of the present parties."

THE PRESIDENT'S COUGH.

The Reports Touching the Condition of the President.

LONG BEACH, Sept. 14.—The President's condition to-day has been satisfactory. He rested well last night with the exception of three hours. From 11 p. m. until 2 a. m. he was very feverish, and the temperature rose high. The patient coughed at frequent intervals and brought up considerable pus from the lungs. The continual hacking and expectoration which attended the glandular swelling had disappeared and a deep, heavy cough, proceeding from the depths of the lungs, has taken its place. After the fever left the patient he fell into a sleep which was only broken when the desire to cough came on him, or he was awakened to take food. The morning bulletin presaged a comfortable day. The temperature was reported normal at 95.4, pulse 100, and respiration 19. The doctors said that the patient was in cheerful frame of mind, and had eaten fruit for breakfast, in addition to his regular diet of toast and milk gruel. The fruit consumed was two small bites of a pear, which the President seemed to relish. He does not take his regular meals with any appetite, and this is ascribed by Dr. Bliss to the fact that he is fed at such frequent intervals. At noon there had been little or no change for the worse. The pulse had gone up to 104. The temperature increased four-tenths of a degree, and the respiration was 20. The natural excitement of the day, however, would account for the slight rise. The severe cough continued, and seemed to grow worse with the afternoon. The respiration increased gradually.

Another one of the small pus pockets, which are continually forming on different parts of the President's body, was opened to-day. Yesterday four of these small abscesses were cut, and altogether fifteen or twenty of them have been punctured. Some of the physicians deny that the presence of these pus pockets is any evidence of blood poisoning. Others say it is one of the best signs of a pyemic condition of the blood. Dr. Agnew who left here yesterday morning, returned this evening. His arrival was anxiously looked for by some of the gentlemen most deeply interested in the case, who put greater faith in him than in the two attending physicians. Such a multiplicity of contradictory statements regarding the status of the case, have been given unofficially during the past week, and that it is hard to tell anything about the President's exact condition. At his request the President was to-day again lifted into his reclining chair, and placed before the ocean view window. He enjoyed the change for an hour and a half, sleeping part of the time, and gazing out upon the ocean while awake. He apparently was not tired when the doctors lifted him back upon his bed.

FOREST FIRES. They are Doing Immense Damage in New Jersey.

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 14.—Forest fires in South and West Jersey are creating immense destruction to valuable woodlands. The drought is the greatest known for many years in the State, and has proved highly destructive to grain and fruit crops. The loss is estimated at thousands of dollars. The fires are spreading in all directions, and an enormous loss must ensue, even should the flames be extinguished within the next twenty-four hours. But at this writing the heavens are of a copper color, and there are no indications of the early coming of rain.

Near Elwood, on the line of the Camden & Atlantic Railroad the fiery element is sweeping over some 25,000 or 30,000 acres of pines and cedars, and it is probable this tract of valuable timber will be entirely consumed. Between Ancon and Winslow miles of pines are burning furiously, and the damage already is vast. Forest fires are burning near Kirkwood and Berlin, and these, aided by variable winds, are fast making their way towards the surrounding settlements. Several exquisite and valuable tracts of cedars, estimated at between $75,000 and $80,000, mostly belonging to the Messrs. Caldwell, of Philadelphia, have been destroyed within a few days. A considerable section of country on the Millville & Maryland line, and Vineland roads is on fire. On the line of the West Jersey railroad the railroad men are working industriously to successfully resist the fiery monster's encroachments. Private advices from the lower part of the peninsula are to the effect that a terrific fire is furiously sweeping a path through the great cypress swamp in Delaware. The swamp, which covers many thousand acres, is filled with dense underbrush, impenetrable in many places. The long dry spell has converted it into a tinder-box and immense destruction of valuable timber is apprehended.

TERRIBLE CONFLAGRATION. The Main Building on the Kansas City Fair Grounds Burned.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 14.—About 8 o'clock this afternoon a terrible conflagration broke out in the main building on the grounds of the Kansas City exposition while the races were in progress, and a wild time followed. Over 20,000 persons were present, and when the fire first became known a panic seized the crowd and the rush was terrible. The grand stand, directly east of the main hall, was occupied by over 12,000 persons, and as the hot air and smoke was blown by the light wind directly upon them, there was but one way to escape, and that by knocking down the fence and crossing the race track to the circle within. It took but a minute to demolish the fence, and then the rush became general, and in the confusion fathers, mothers, and children were separated from each other. The 2,277 race was in progress at the time, and they, with their horses mingled with the fleeing crowd and found safety in the large plat of ground near the backstretch. The flames in the main hall seized upon the decorations and exhibits with almost lightninglike rapidity, and in less than five minutes had communicated to the grand stand. In three minutes more that vast structure was a mass of roaring fire, the flames reaching the trees by means of the private boxes, which formed a second story to the grand stand, so fast did they approach that the ladies and gentlemen had no time to reach the exits. Serious accidents occurred by a number of people falling from the boxes, and a few lives were lost. Several persons had arms and legs broken, but to the good sense of the vast crowd is due the fact that the panic did not assume uncontrollable proportions. The loss by the fire will reach about $65,000, upon which there is insurance of only about $12,000.

GENERAL BURNSIDE.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 14.—An autopsy showed that the cause of the death of General Burnside was angina pectoris. The Governor has ordered the militia to parade at the funeral, and invited veterans and civic societies to be in the procession.

IROQUOIS.

He Wins the St. Leger Stakes.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—The race for the St. Leger stakes, at Doncaster September meeting, was won by Iroquois; Geologist second, and Lucy Glitters third. The betting immediately before the start for the St. Leger stakes was 100 to 30 against Iroquois, 4 to 1 against Ishmael, and 5 to 1 against St. Louis. Archer rode Iroquois.

SAN FRANCISCO. A Forest and Brush Fire Raging Near that City.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 14.—A forest and brush fire is raging in Marin county, near the foot of Mount Tamalpais. It is reported that houses, outbuildings, fences, etc., are being swept away. The fire is visible from this city. A dense cloud of smoke is hanging over the city, driven across the bay by the north wind.

NOT DEAD.

The report which reached here to the effect that Jim Snell had died in State prison of dropsy, seems to have no foundation at all. It is evident that Jim himself has not heard of it, and if it was time he would be likely to know as much about it as anyone. Under date of the 10th he writes us ordering a continuance of the Gazette, say "As a matter of choice I should much prefer to sacrifice my bean soup rather than be without the Gazette, as the 'hash' of Janesville events as 'dished up' by the Gazette's able caterers make a much more palatable dish for a Sunday pastime than the time-honored 'condrum' which has so long been the butt of newspaper and other jokes."

As he signs his letter "J. W. Snell, Big Jim for short," it is evident he is the same Jim who made so long a record here.

In remitting for his renewal of the Gazette, he sends a can of his own make which is certainly a curiosity as well as a very nobby walking stick. It is made of leather and shows much skill and taste. By making and selling these canes Jim manages to get a little extra money, and as chances for speculation are few where he is, he improves such slight ones as this. Such canes ought to sell rapidly, for they are unique.

CAUSE OF COMPLAINT.

To the Editor, A day or two since the writer improved his dinner hour to go to the postoffice to obtain a money order. To his surprise he was unable to effect his purpose—a placard on the door of the money-order office announcing that the department is closed at all hours which a laboring man can take advantage of to attend to such duties without neglecting his work. In Bolot—from which city the writer recently came—the postoffice is so regulated that a money-order can be obtained or a letter registered at any time between 8:30 a. m. and 6:30 p. m.—ten consecutive hours. In Janesville the money-order office is nominally open from 8 a. m. to 12 m., and from 1 to 5 p. m.; but during a large portion of the afternoon hours it is actually closed to the great inconvenience of the public. The present rules could not be more unacceptable to those patrons of the postoffice whose work continues them during the regular ten hours of the day.

Mourning Customs—Their Useless Cost and Worry.

It appears that our present mourning customs impose upon us a great amount of cost and worry, at an especially inopportune period. And from this the inquirer proceeds to ask what is the reason why the unwelcome expense and bother are incurred? why affliction of mind more than that of the body should be proclaimed by attire? why is it so much more important to associate a particular color with grief than with rheumatism, biliousness, influenza, or any other ailment?...

Of Interest to Mothers.

What physicians consider a singular case is in course of treatment at the American Medical College. The patient's name is Master Hyde. He lives on Sheridan Avenue. He is a confirmed opium-eater. His age is eight months and three days. The child was brought to the clinic last week by his mother. She stated that he had been restless and that she had discovered that soothing sirup would keep him quiet. She refused to stop the dose. Soon the child became almost an opium maniac. He refused all sorts of food, he badly constipated, and can digest nothing. The more sirup of a small bottle puts him into a crying fit, during which he bawls incessantly until the soothing sirup is administered. Of course, the trouble with him is inattention, brought about by the lack of sufficient nourishment, and he is dying slowly. He refuses to take anything but the sirup, and when brought to the hospital clinic was almost a wreck. Dr. Vost took charge of the case and set about prescribing the usual remedies and is endeavoring to get the child's stomach to assimilate prepared infant's food, etc. 'This is not such an uncommon case,' said Dr. Merrill, who was in charge of the hospital this morning when the reporter called. 'Of course they are seldom as bad as this, but the basis of nearly all these soothing sirups is opium, and the rest and quiet they bring to a child is the result of a thorough drugging. We meet with them often, and a great many deaths among children who are reported as being due to other causes are the result of opium and nothing else.' 'What forms of death are of this class?' 'Well, take any mortality list, look among the children's deaths, and you will see 'convulsions, convulsions, convulsions' almost one-third of the way through. They ought to scratch all that out and write 'opium, opium, opium' instead. Of course the child actually died of convulsions, but opium brought on the convulsions and was probably the sole cause of them. It would astonish you to know the number of physicians, many of them men who ought to know better, who prescribe opium in some form in children's cases. In some instances it is a murderous act.' Master Hyde is progressing favorably, and the chances are that he may live to read what Dr. Quincy thought of him, which the latter never thought would take root at so early an age.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.
